Acoustic ceiling solutions are able to vastly improve the quality of office spaces, shopping centres, meeting rooms, corridors, educational facilities, auditoria and cinemas acoustically and aesthetically. Improving the acoustical standard in a work or learning environment is known to increase the level of concentration and attention, resulting in enhanced work efficiency and well-being. increase sound absorption and noise diffusion in any space.

Social Development of Local Communities

When Supertec started up more than 16 years ago, we decided that as a company value we would always prefer to give the opportunity of employment and skills development to members of our local community. With a modest beginning and a handful of machines, we were able to train and equip young men and women to become qualified machine operators, machine setters and programmers, drivers and quality controllers, enhancing the chance of life improvement for them, their families and their communities.

Today Supertec employs more than 200 staff members, of which most come from our surrounding local communities.

At our Alrode Factory situated in the south of Johannesburg, we have 48 machine operators operating 14 production lines during each shift. We are proud to claim that more than 90% of our factory and operational staff were unskilled when starting with us, but are now fully skilled in their relevant fields.

We believe in the social development of our local community and consistently playing a part in offering a solution.

Supertec Ceilings takes pride in ensuring that the products and systems that we supply conform to industry standards. The South African Bureau of Standards is a statutory body which develops, promotes and maintains South African National Standards (SANS); promotes quality of commodities, products and service; and renders conformity assessment services. Our products are therefore inspected and tested according to the relevant SANS standards.

For over a decade Supertec has provided a complete solution to your ceiling and partitioning requirements. Not only do we pride ourselves in being one of the leading manufacturers of steel ceiling & partitioning systems, but through national network of branches we have become one of the largest suppliers and distributors of well known brands including:
